

Support Systems for Computer Assisted Assessment at The University of Bradford

Now that the Policies and Procedures for Computer Assisted Assessment have been approved by the Academic Policies Committee and Senate, all summative online assessment will now be handled by the Exams Office.

The flow-chart above illustrates the steps that will typically be followed from the initial idea to use online assessment, through to the day of the exam itself. This flow-chart brings together the duties of the instructor/academic, the department administrator, the learning technology team, technical services, user services, the exams office, room bookings and invigilators.

The left hand column deals with the administrative issues concerned, the centre column deals with the specific duties and responsibilities of the instructor, and the right hand column deals with the duties involving the learning technology team and the teaching quality enhancement unit.

For more detail on his procedure, refer to the document “CAA Policies and Procedures”, available from ASSU, or contact the learning technology team on ictservicedesk@brad.ac.uk.
